CASE: TEP VANNY

Tep Vanny

Country: Cambodia

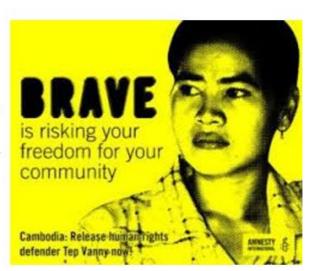

Land Rights Defender

Abuse faced: Persecution through prosecution, imprisonment, intimidation.

BRAVE Theme:

Women HRDs and LGBTI defenders

Misuse / regressive use of law

- 1. Tep Vanny is a land rights defender, human rights defender and community representative.
- 2. Tap Vanny, has become a symbol of peaceful resistance in Cambodia.
- 3. She helped mobilise the communities of Boeung Kak Lake to protest against the forced eviction of thousands of families to make way for a tourist development by a private company granted a 99-year lease on the land by Phnom Penh Municipality.
- 4. Because of their peaceful protests, she and 13 fellow women human rights defenders, were sentenced to 2.5 years in prison on 24 May 2012.
- 5. The authorities are now reviving old cases against Tep Vanny in an apparent attempt to silence her and as a warning to other defenders.
- 6. In March 2013, she participated in a protest against the lake development, held outside Prime Minister Hun Sen's house in Phnom Penh.
- 7. Because of this, on 23 February 2017 she was convicted on charges of "intentional violence with aggravated circumstances" and again given a 2.5-year prison sentence.
- 8. During the trial the prosecution presented no credible evidence to back up their charges.
- 9. She has been in prison since 16 August 2016 for her land protest work, and the authorities are going to extraordinary lengths to ensure that she remains in prison.
- 10. They hope to send a chilling message to other human rights defenders and activists.

Instructions:

Part 1: Read the case sheet, make a note of key issues and concerns about the case. Share your case with the rest of the group. After all groups have fedback, discuss the similarities of the HRDs work, the tactics used to silence them and common themes. (20 minutes)
