Solidarity with activists for reproductive rights

Northern Ireland is the only place in the UK where women can face up to life in prison for having an abortion. Its laws are outdated, discriminatory and in breach of the UK's own human rights obligations.

Approximately 1,000 women and girls from Northern Ireland travel to England and Wales for abortions every year. Some of those who cannot travel buy abortion pills online and are then put at risk of prosecution.

In Northern Ireland, abortion is illegal in almost every circumstance. Its laws are among the most restrictive in Europe, and with the harshest criminal penalties.

Amnesty is working with reproductive rights activists and organisations to campaign for reform of this dangerous and degrading law.

'Women in Northern Ireland are still persecuted by a Victorian-era abortion ban. It's time women and girls were given control over their bodies and lives.' Grainne Teggart, Amnesty's campaigns manager for Northern Ireland
