

Take action for Elzbieta

Elzbieta Podleśna could face two years in prison after being accused of owning a poster of the Virgin Mary with a rainbow halo. Elzbieta is one of many activists who are being attacked for taking a stand against discrimination in Poland.

Email Poland's Interior Minister and demand this ludicrous investigation to be stopped immediately.

Fundraising with #PrideInside

Pride events transform cities across the country into dazzling displays of colour as rainbow flags flood the streets in celebration of LGBTI+ culture. Lockdown means that isn't possible this year, so we're asking groups to raise funds for Amnesty International UK while celebrating Pride Inside during lockdown. You could bake a rainbow cake (if you can find flour!), get dressed in your Pride outfit or anything else you can think of! Remember to post a video or picture on social media and tag five other people asking them to donate and challenging them to share their Pride Inside celebrations.

The money you raise will help Amnesty International UK continue to fight for the rights of LGBTI+ in the UK and across the world. Whether it's equal marriage, the right for trans people to self-identify, or the right of LGBTI+ to live and love freely without the fear of violence and oppression, we're there supporting it. Pride may be different this year, but there are still lots of ways to celebrate and learn about Queer history.

Along with all the fantastic events as part of Pride Inside, why not pick up LGBTI+ book from the Amnesty Shop? We have some great fiction and non-fiction, including the wonderful "Sensible Footwear" by Kate Charlesworth, described as an "instant classic" by the Guardian. A history book and memoir in one - this book interweaves Kate's own personal story, her coming out and falling in love, with a comprehensive social history of the LGBT+ movement in Britain. Or delve into the 1890's London gay scene in the heart wrenching "London Triptych" by Jonathan Kemp. And don't forget your Amnesty Pride t-shirt! Buying from us is another way you can help us raise vitally needed funds for human rights.
