WHAT: UNFAIR IMPRISONMENT OF A DIABETIC BOY

CASE OVERVIEW

Ali Muslim Ebrahim is a 15 year old diabetic Bahraini boy. On 8th September he was arrested and reportedly beaten during interrogation. Now, he is being detained in an adult prison until his next hearing on 25th October. Ali suffers from diabetes and needs regular insulin injections and a special diet. It is unknown whether he is receiving regular and adequate medical care in prison.

BACKGROUND

Ali Muslim Ebrahim was arrested at his home in Northern Bahrain at 2:45am on 8th September. The Police said the boy's name was on a list of people to be arrested, but they did not show an arrest warrant. He was taken to his local Police Station where he was forced to "confess" to taking part in "illegal gatherings", "throwing petrol bombs" and "rioting".

On 10th September Ali was taken to court, where he stated he made his confessions under duress. His case is now being investigated and Ali is being held in an a prison for adults in the country's capital. He will remain there until his next court hearing on the 25th October.

Amnesty's concerns:

In recent years the Bahrain government has cracked down on any form of public protest and anti-government demonstrations have ended violently.

Worryingly, Amnesty has been receiving more and more cases of children being arrested for "rioting". We are concerned that they are being unfairly imprisoned, ill-treated and kept in prisons for adults.
