Millions of people around the world and thousands across Ireland and the UK are sold into exploitation and slavery every year – but it is a crime that takes place in the shadows. Over 60 filmmakers entered the first Unchosen Human Trafficking Film Competition to shine a light on this dark trade. Based on real life cases, the shortlisted films are now touring the UK & Ireland to show what slavery looks like in the 21st Century – and what WE can do to stamp it out.

INTRODUCTION BY the Right Worshipful, The Lord Mayor of the City of Exeter, Councillor Percy Prowse

The Trip, directed by Prano Bailey-Bond

The Trip tells the true story of Hung, a young Vietnamese man trafficked abroad on the promise of a job and a new life, only to be forced to work in a cannabis factory upon arrival. Now a prisoner his existence becomes monotonous and claustrophobic.

Let's Talk About Sex, directed by Li-Da Kruger

Meet Anja and Ian, a man and woman from two vastly different backgrounds with two vastly different experiences of a sexual encounter.

Nicu, directed by Niki Anastasi

Meet Nicu, a 9-year old boy trafficked from Romania. Nicu and his friend roam the streets of London, stealing what they can in order to survive. In a letter to his mother, Nicu tells her of the 'riches' he has found abroad.
